Mediation Board Calls for New Conference on Soft Coal

(By The Associated Press)
A strike by CIO workers at the Carborundum plant at Niagara Falls, which union leaders predicted would be 100 per cent effective, started this morning and threatened the manufacture of grinding wheels and abrasives which company officials said were used in practically every defense industry.

Company spokesmen said they expected no appreciable curtailment of production and said "a great many" of the 3,200 employees were on their jobs.

The CIO men seek collective bargaining representation.

On the other side of the strike picture, construction work was resumed on the $30,000,000 Ravenna, Ohio, arsenal as officials said 10,400 men returned to work after a three-day shutdown which AFL officials said was "unauthorized."

AFL officials checked workers into the plant, saying those held responsible for the three-day shutdown were denied admittance and the un-American leaders who precipitated the strike would be tried by their unions.

Negotiations were to open late in the day on demands for a 25-cent increase in the present 65-cent basic wage for 3,000 common laborers at the arsenal.

Soft Coal Parley
The National Defense Mediation Board, preparing to publish its findings of fact and recommendations after conceding it had failed to settle a wage dispute between CIO's United Mine Workers and operators of Southern Soft Coal Mines, scheduled a further conference with interested parties late in the day.

A special senate defense investigating committee inquiring into the shipyard tie-up in the San Francisco Bay area postponed resumption of hearings until tomorrow when William Green, president of the AFL, is expected to appear.

It appeared unlikely that recommendations of the Defense Mediation Board would be announced before the middle of the week.

The board has no statutory power to force the opposing sides to accept these, but John L. Lewis, UMW president, agreed there would be no work stoppage until they were completed.

Northern operators have agreed to accept a $1 a day wage raise to $7 a day. The union demanded that southern operators raise the wage rate to $7 also, but this would be a $1.40 increase over the present southern rate of $5.60 and the operators balked. They insisted that the differential of 40 cents a day in their favor be maintained.

J. L. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, Inc., Inglewood, Calif., took a plane for Washington to talk over with the board a strike threat by CIO's United Automobile Workers, who say they will walk out Wednesday unless the company increases the minimum pay from 50 to 75 cents an hour and grants a blanket increase of 10 cents an hour to all of its 11,000 employees.

Pending its consideration of the case, the board has asked the workers to continue production on bombers, pursuit ships and combat trainers for the army and Britain. The company has been turning out such planes at the rate of ten a day. It has about $190,000,000 of orders for the United States and Great Britain.

Schools May Yield Workers for Farms

Albany, N. Y., May 26 (AP)—Fear of a "dangerous" curtailment of food production because of the farm labor shortage brought two proposals today for recruiting help from New York's school class rooms.

Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, deputy state education commissioner, said education officials are considering opening schools a week or ten days earlier than usual next fall to permit release of students for farm work later in the harvest season.

"It has also been suggested that idle farm youth 16 years old or over be encouraged to take farm jobs during the summer," he added.

Walter N. Gill, 80, Former Surrogate, Dies on Sunday

Prominent Resident Was Ill for Several Years; Practised Law Here for 57 Years

Former Surrogate Walter N. Gill, 80, who in an active career of more than half a century as a lawyer, held many important posts in city and county government, died early Sunday morning in his home, 89 Green street, after an illness of several years. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of A. Carr & Son on Pearl street, with burial in Montrose cemetery.

Mr. Gill was born in the Ponckhockie section of Kingston on January 23, 1861, a son of the late David Gill, Sr., and Isabelle Caldwell Gill. He attended the public schools of this city, and later entered Old Kingston Academy, from which he was graduated on June 28, 1878.

Following his graduation, Mr. Gill took up the study of law and entered the Albany Law School, graduating on May 27, 1881. He was admitted to the bar the following day and began the practice of his profession in the downtown section of the city, where he practiced continuously for a period of 57 years, until his health failed several years ago.

Mr. Gill as a young man was

F.D.R. Signs Farm Loan Measure

Act Provides for Mandatory Loans on Cotton, Corn, Wheat, Tobacco and Rice

Level Is Set

Legislation Reflects U. S. Objective, Roosevelt Says

Washington, May 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed today legislation providing for loans on major farm crops of 85 per cent of parity but declared that he had done so with the understanding that farm prices should not be permitted to go above the so-called parity level.

The legislation provides for mandatory loans on cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco.

Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement that the legislation reflected the government's objective for eight years and the fact that farmers "did not have and have not as great a share of the national income as other groups."

But he noted that when the bill becomes law farmers cooperating with the government farm program will be able to receive 85 per cent parity loans, plus cash parity payments, plus soil conservation payments in cash.

"Under no circumstances," the Chief Executive declared, "should the sum of these three exceed parity: x x x I am approving this joint resolution on the distinct understanding that parity payments will be limited to the amount necessary to bring the basic commodities to parity but not beyond parity."

(Parity prices are designed to give farmers the same purchasing power in terms of non-farm products as they had during the period from 1909 to 1914.)

Early Says Berlin Tries To 'Becloud' President's Proposed 'Fireside' Talk

Sinking of Hood Shows Importance Of African Ports

Critical Problem Facing Allies Is Whether French Will Work With Germans

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

All the sensational developments of the week-end seemed to be hooked with one of the most critical problems which confront the British and their allies at the moment—whether the French government at Vichy intends to carry its collaboration with the Axis to the extent of giving up its colonies for bases.

The sea fight off Greenland, which cost John Bull the battle cruiser Hood, a grand ship of such graceful lines that he took greater pride in it than any other, was a grim part of the battle of the Atlantic. It is a potent reminder that if the Germans get the French ports on the west coast of Africa, especially Dakar, they will be in far stronger position for their assault on America's all-out aid and other transatlantic shipping.

With this must be coupled Nazi Grand Admiral Raeder's warning that the use of American convoys for contraband to Britain would be an "open war act" to which the German navy would reply with gunfire if necessary.

May Secure Nazi Base
Every moment that the battle of Crete proceeds it calls attention to the likelihood that French mandated Syria will become a full-fledged Nazi base if the Germans win—and maybe it will if they don't—thus creating a powerful threat against the Suez Canal and Egypt.

Every moment, too, that this conflict in the eastern Mediterranean remains at white heat, we may be sure that Germans are taking advantage of this distraction to

Greek King Tells of Escape From German Sky Soldiers

Monarch Tells of Harrowing Flight From Residence, of Escaping Nazi Planes by Hiding in Ditches

Cairo, May 26 (AP)—Barely evading swarms of Nazi parachutists who landed virtually in his backyard on embattled Crete, King George II of Greece found temporary haven today in Egypt en route to British territory to re-establish his government in its third capital in less than five weeks.

The harassed monarch, who told in his own words upon arrival of how narrowly he eluded the first clouds of German sky troops last Tuesday, proclaimed immediately that Greece was determined to fight on.

He did not say where government, which had been established at Canea, Crete, since fleeing Athens just ahead of Nazi panzer units April 23, would have its new seat.

(Diplomatic reports in Ankara, Turkey, said King George would fly to Jerusalem and set up the government in that capital of British-mandated Palestine.)

Several times in his hair-raising, 72-hour trip across Crete, the king threw himself into ditches to escape Nazi fire. Once or twice his party was a target for bullets fired by Greek patrols which apparently mistook them for parachutists in British and Greek uniforms. He slept in a cave with shepherds, sharing their food; crossed a 7,000-foot mountain, and finally reached the island's south coast, on a mule.

A British destroyer then carried the royal party—which included Premier-War Minister Emmanuel Tsouderos and other members of the government, British Minister Sir Michael Palairat and his wife, and the British legation staff—to Egypt.

Telling of the journey, King George said: "One of the main objectives for the German parachute troops (on the first day) was the area around the house where the premier and I lived. In fact, the first flight of parachutists landed within a few hundred yards of my house and the fight began. * * *

"As the main force of the enemy separated us from our troops it became imperative for us to withdraw in order to frustrate their plans."

Men sent back to King George's house, to get his baggage found the house filled with Nazi soldiers.

Several times during the journey, members of the party said, the rear guard of New Zealanders and Greek gendarmes fired on Nazi parachutists. The party repeatedly witnessed machine-gunning from the air and saw parachutists dropping.

Plans for the big Memorial Day parade to be held in Kingston on Friday have been completed, and official orders for the parade have been released. Major Carlton S. Preston will serve as grand marshal of the parade, which will begin at 11 o'clock that morning.

Commander C. B. Skane of the V.F.W. is chairman.

The parade will form on Pearl street at Clinton avenue, and the line of march will be down Broadway to Delaware avenue, where it will disband. Soldiers now home on leave are expected to take part.

A reviewing stand will be erected on the lawn in front of the city hall from which the parade will be reviewed by the city officials.

The parade orders read as follows: Date: May 30th, 1941. Time of Assembly: 10:30 a. m. Time of Start: 11 a. m. upon signal of five taps by fire alarm followed immediately by bugler blowing "assembly" and then "forward march."

Point of Start: Pearl street at Clinton avenue. Route of March: Albany avenue to Broadway to Delaware avenue. Review: The parade will be reviewed at the reviewing stand in front of the city hall by — His Honor the Mayor. Guests of honor: Major Charles N. Behrens and Major E. A. Steuding.

Ambulance Interne Saves Officer From Crowd Following Shooting

New York, May 26 (AP)—A quick-thinking ambulance interne who pretended to work over the victim of a dance-hall shooting whom he knew to be dead was credited today with having prevented an angry crowd of several hundred patrons from molesting a special patrolman who fired the shot.

Preparing a hypodermic needle and ordering the threatening on-lookers to stand back and give his patient air, Dr. John A. Erabson of Roosevelt Hospital kept them at bay last night until police arrived and took the patrolman into custody.

The shooting, which occurred in the lobby of the Royal Windsor ballroom during a benefit dance for Spanish refugee children, attended by some 2,500 persons, resulted from an argument between the patrolman, Morris Zuckerman, and Joseph Fojo, 26, over a 75-cent return check.

Assistant District Attorney Paul Reilly, ordering Zuckerman booked on a charge of technical homicide, said the patrolman told him he fired the shot as a warning to Fojo and five companions who he said set upon him when he refused to re-admit Fojo to the hall.

Zuckerman explained that someone in the lobby struck his arm just as he fired the fatal shot, which pierced Fojo's head.

Anglo Chief Takes Calm Attitude

Germans Use Air-Borne Tanks, Troops in New Assault; Heywood Expects Victory

Claim Disputed

British Deny Germans Hold West End of Island

(By The Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's aerial invaders of Crete, reinforced by air-borne tanks and sea-transported troops, penetrated British defense lines today in an attack west of Canea, the Crete capital, and Axis reports asserted that the British fleet had been driven off after suffering enormous losses.

British middle east headquarters, acknowledging Nazi inroads under cover of a violent assault by the German Luftwaffe, said that New Zealand troops were counter-attacking and that "severe fighting is continuing" in the Canea sector.

The Germans now apparently had three strong footholds on the 160-mile-long island—in the regions of Canea, Candia and Retimo—and the Nazi high command reported "a steady flow of reinforcements" was arriving from Greek mainland bases, 100 miles away.

British general headquarters' description of the German attack "west of Canea" presumably referred to the vicinity of Nazi-held Malemi airfield.

British formations, along with light-hardened Australians and New Zealanders, were said to have inflicted "heavy casualties" on the Germans in the seven-day-old struggle.

Reports reaching Cairo said that over the week-end the Nazi Luftwaffe had bombed Crete's principal cities on a terrific scale, comparable to the bombing of Rotterdam, Holland, last spring.

These reports said Crete natives escaped severe loss of life by taking shelter in the island's caves.

London sources disclosed that British marines are now engaged in the battle, but they declined to say whether substantial reinforcements were being landed to fight the Nazi invaders.

The German high command declared that Nazi warplanes and Italian naval and air forces sank a total of 11 cruisers, eight destroyers, a submarine and five speedboats in the eastern Mediterranean since the conflict began last Tuesday.

Despite these reported setbacks, Maj.-Gen. T. B. Heywood, chief of the British military mission to the Greeks, predicted calmly: "I think it will be possible to hold Crete."

In London, a British spokesman said fighting on the island Sunday was "quieter," but he cautioned Britons against thinking that "the German bolt was shot."

Dispatches from Rome said German troops had been landed on the island from ships protected by the Italian navy, conveyed through waters the British fleet had guarded.

Reinforcements Insignificant
The British acknowledged that a few sea-borne reinforcements might have landed, but said they were insignificant. It was recalled that last week a squadron of British cruisers and destroyers was reported to have intercepted an Italian-guarded convoy north of Crete, drawing 5,000 Germans and sinking at least 40 troop-laden boats.

The British, reporting the arrival of air-borne German tanks, said that Nazi aerial invaders were still holding the important Malemi airport, 10 miles from Canea, the Crete capital, and that heavy fighting raged in the British-held sectors of Retimo and Candia, in central Crete.

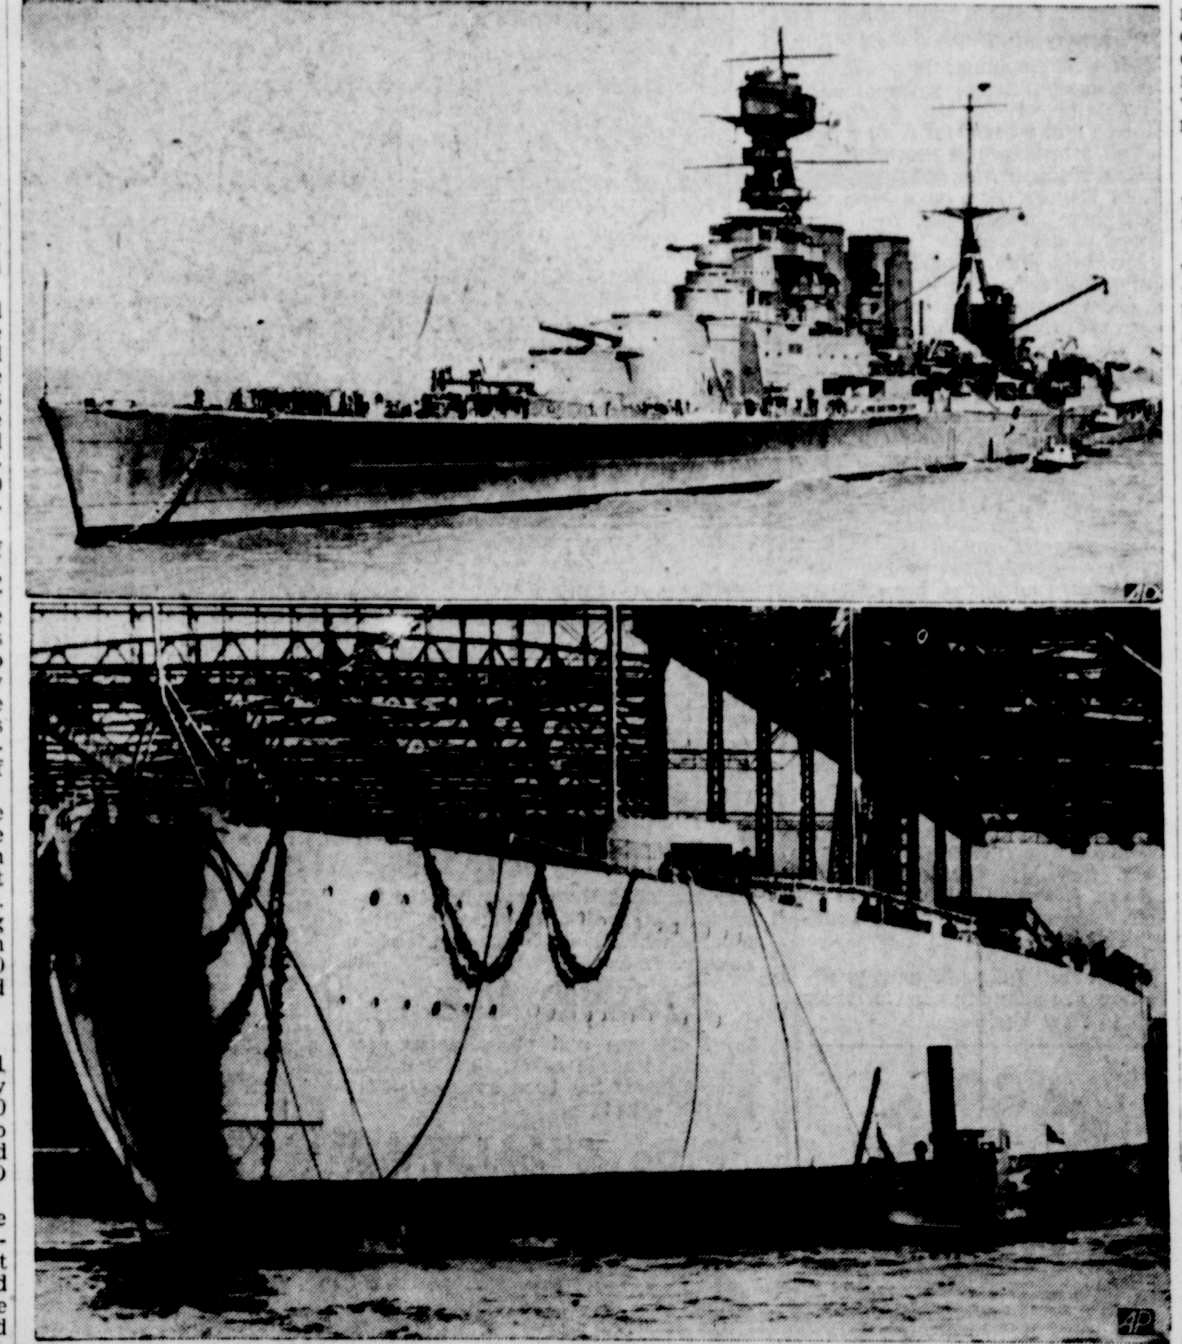

Authoritative British quarters disputed German claims of a solid hold on the western end of the island.

Long-range R.A.F. warplanes, flying from North African desert airbases, were reported to have entered the fight against Nazi aerial troop-carriers after R.A.F. fighter planes had been withdrawn last week when Crete's few airfields were declared untenable against Nazi dive-bombing assaults.

Premier Mussolini's high command said Fascist planes were also engaged in the attack on Crete, repeatedly bombing and machine-gunning strongholds on the island.

Judge S. W. Greene Speaks Here on Christian Science

Following is the text of the address delivered by Judge S. W. Greene of Chicago, Illinois at the Kingston High School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon:

It is safe to assume that any religious teaching which expects to meet with public approval must base its claim for recognition upon the Bible; and this Christian Science does. Careful reading of the Bible discloses the fact that the outstanding characters of the Old Testament regime were men who discerned God's law or God's government, and brought their lives into accord therewith. Such men as Abraham, Moses, Jacob, Joseph, David, Elijah, Elisha, and others, who triumphed over human obstacles and difficulties for themselves and others through adherence to God's law, are a powerful example to men of today and their lives should be of great and universal interest to mankind.

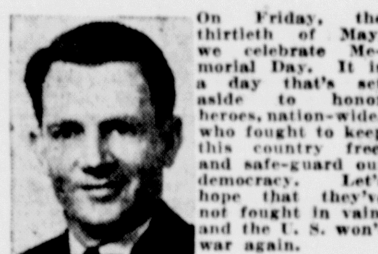

To one of the men of that period came this inspiring message: "Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee; turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest."

It is indeed greatly to the credit of these eminent men of Biblical fame that they constantly endeavored to know God's will, God's law, and to abide therein. The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, in her book "Rudimentary Divine Science" (p. 1), defines Christian Science "As the law of God, the law of good, interpreting and demonstrating the divine Principle and rule of universal harmony."

This use of law in defining Christian Science is an indication that in her study of the Bible Mrs. Eddy saw that the accomplishments of its chief characters were not haphazard, but their successes were carefully and intelligently worked out through obedience to law. She was thus encouraged to try the Biblical method in her search for health, and for the solution of other human problems. She was impressed with the fullness and abundance of God's promises as given in the Bible. In further study she saw that the really wise men of the Bible had been able to understand something of God and had so conformed their thoughts and lives as to realize the fulfillment of Biblical promises.

In her endeavor to take practical advantage of this dawning truth of Bible understandings she caught a glimpse of God as Principle. This brought to her the happy realization that the power of God as Principle is just as much a fact in the nineteenth century as in the first century, or in any time. This caused her then to study the instances of healing recounted in the Bible; that she might discern the same power with the same satisfactory result as in Biblical times. She saw the healings of the prophets and of Jesus and His disciples not as supernatural or miraculous, but as the result of God's law being observed, and God's power thereby being made manifest. She took a particular case of healing and strove to apply the same lawful procedure in her own case, and quickly found herself able to rise from a sick bed and to immediately experience a better sense of health.

This was the discovery of the operation of God's law and its mighty potentialities which she called Christian Science.

Mrs. Eddy names the "Two Cardinal points of Mind-healing, or Christian Science" as "the nothingness of material life and intelligence and the mighty actuality of all-inclusive God, good." In her health, p. 52, of her book "The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science," she took her stand and built her Church; and its growth and stability surely attest the wisdom and inspiration of the Founder.

She then applied herself to a study of the Bible that she might know the scientific basis of her healing. As she studied, the Scriptures were illumined, and she saw and understood how healing depends upon a knowledge of God, as evidenced in one of Jesus' most comprehensive promises, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." She saw that all of Jesus' healings came through His reliance upon God. She saw that Jesus claimed no exclusive right to do spiritual healing, but that the same healing power could be exercised by any man who understood the Christ. Thus was she led unerringly to the discovery that this scientific healing is in accord with divine law. Therefore, its practice is not limited, but is available for every earnest seeker after God who adheres to the plan outlined in Christian Science.

The Textbook For the purpose of enabling the Bible student to understand its spiritual import and significance, and to elucidate the practical operation of Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy wrote the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." At first the book evoked a storm of criticism from medical, religious, and scientific sources, but gradually, as faithful men and women studied it, some under the author's tutelage, others independently, and began to apply its teachings, the healings of sin, disease, and other human problems resulted. Today spiritual healing, as practiced in Christian Science, is generally recognized as possible and of common occurrence. Indeed some medical men are sending the so-called incurables to Christian Science, and many preachers are advocating a study of the methods of spiritual healing. The Christian Science textbook is now well known in most libraries of any importance. It has been the agency through which great numbers of invalids and unfortunate have found health, happiness, and comfort.

A study of this book unfolds to humanity the spiritual interpretation of the Bible, thus justifying that portion of the title "Key to the Scriptures."

St. Mary's Class To Be Confirmed Archbishop Will Visit Church for Ceremony

Tuesday will be a day of rejoicing for the parish of St. Mary's, due to the fact that His Grace, the Most Rev. Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, will make his first official visit to that church. The occasion will be the confirmation of a large class of children and adults, which ceremony will take place at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Due to many other duties the archbishop has not found time to administer confirmation, that duty being taken care of by the auxiliary bishops. It is therefore considered an honor to St. Mary's Church and a mark of appreciation for its pastor, the Very Rev. Martin J. Drury, that Archbishop Spellman has consented to administer the rite in Kingston. Elaborate preparations have been made by Dean Drury to receive the archbishop and following the confirmation a reception will be tendered to the clergy attending the ceremonies.

Memorial Mass The annual memorial Mass will be celebrated in St. Mary's Cemetery Friday, Memorial Day, at 11:30 a. m. This Mass, which draws hundreds of people to the cemetery each year to pay homage to the soldier dead there, is attended by not only Kingstons but by many from out of town. The preacher this year will be a former pastor of St. Mary's Church, the Very Rev. Msgr. John J. Stanley. In the event of rain the Mass will be celebrated in St. Mary's Church.

run troops and equipment through the British blockade to the African shores of this inland sea. Are these forces going into the French colonies, to establish a grave threat against England's control of the all-important Mediterranean theatre?

That's a question upon which the security of the allied cause may hinge. Obviously, then, Britain must move an immediate answer. It's too dangerous to let the matter ride along.

She must have absolute assurance that the French won't permit German use of the colonies. She can get this assurance in one of two ways—by a guarantee from the French, or by taking military action to safeguard herself.

The French promise of collaboration with Germany has brought about a break between France and America, barring severance of diplomatic relations. The same is true of Britain, and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden has warned that the allies will strike the enemy on French soil if necessary.

Force Is Threatened Meanwhile the French in Syria have been permitting the Germans to use their airdromes for warplanes in transit, and at the same time are threatening to meet the British with force if they enter the country. Whether the Syrian position remains to be seen, but it certainly isn't encouraging to the allies.

It's hard to believe that France would deliver herself up to a Germany which, in the language of President Roosevelt, is bent on "the utter destruction of liberty." Indeed, we know that many of the French people are praying for the allies to win the war.

Up to this juncture, Chief of State Marshal Petain has given every indication that he intended to resist the Nazi pressure for integrity of the French people. But the burden of the marshal's great age presses down upon him, and no matter how good his intentions, it would be difficult for him to resist the Nazi pressure for concessions.

Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan, however, is active enough in his mind, and is calling vigorously for cooperation with France's conquerors. The signs are that Darlan's policies suit the Hitlerites fine, and he may be headed for the job of chief of state in due course.

Naturally Britain's problem isn't easy, for a false move might throw Vichy right into Hitler's camp. Still, in some way the allies must ensure that the colonies don't fall under German control, and there is no time to waste.

developments, members of Congress are looking to Mr. Roosevelt for an up-to-the-minute statement of United States foreign policy. There has been uncertainty as to administration's future plans, particularly since the recent pronouncement of cabinet members, urging repeal of the neutrality act, and "guaranteed" delivery on lease-lend shipments.

There was considerable speculation as to whether the Chief Executive would back up demands by members of his official family for "affirmative steps" to aid Great Britain's fight against the Axis. Mr. Roosevelt will address the nation by radio tomorrow night (9:30 p. m., E. S. T.).

One highly-placed senator, emphasizing that he was merely guessing, told reporters he thought Mr. Roosevelt might "state the case" about recent war developments but might not outline any concrete steps for this country.

It was believed in other quarters, however, that yesterday's German warning and Japan's action in Indo-China had injected new elements into the complex international situation that were not likely to be ignored. There was some speculation as to whether both may have been carefully timed to precede Mr. Roosevelt's address.

Center of Attention Considerable attention centered on the statements of Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, Germany's sea lord, not only because of his warning against American entry into the war, but because of his veiled hints that Nazi raiders might act against units of the United States fleet now on patrol duty.

Convoys, Raeder asserted in a Berlin interview, would constitute an "open war act" and the guns of the German navy would reply, if necessary.

As for the present patrol system, Raeder maintained that "its aggressive character already has been established." If an American warship on patrol reports the position of a German vessel to the enemy or follows it, the admiral said, the German commander "is justified . . . to demand cessation of hostile actions by the ship involved and if necessary to enforce it with arms."

President Roosevelt's attitude has been that the patrol system is operating essentially in the interests of hemisphere defense, but Raeder's sharp comments led to the belief that the Germans had found it a handicap in their campaign against the western end of Britain's Atlantic lifeline.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), a leading proponent of "affirmative action" against the Axis powers, suggested in a statement today that Mr. Roosevelt announce a full national emergency and then tell his listeners that "we will not let England fail."

"We should tell him (Hitler) that we will not permit him to occupy the Azores, other Atlantic islands, or Dakar. And we should tell him we are not going to let interested in politics and in 1886 he was elected a member of the Board of Supervisors from the first district of the city.

On May 12, 1889, he was appointed postmaster of Rondout by President Benjamin Harrison, and served as such until May 1, 1894. In 1884, Mr. Gill became associated with Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck in a law partnership under the firm name of Hasbrouck & Gill.

During the administration of the late Mayor Phinney in 1900-01, Mr. Gill served as corporation counsel of the city. More than 20 years later he again was appointed corporation counsel of the city when Walter P. Crane became mayor of the city, serving as legal head of the city from 1922 through 1923.

Appointed by Hughes Mr. Gill on August 3, 1908, was appointed surrogate of Ulster county by Governor Charles Evans Hughes, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the late Surrogate Charles Davis of Saugerties. In the fall of that year, Judge Gill was nominated for the judicial pay, and was elected as surrogate for the full term of six years. Upon the expiration of that term, he received the endorsement of both the Republican and Democratic parties and was re-elected without opposition for an additional term of six years.

In the years before the present form of the system of the city was consolidated, Mr. Gill served as a trustee of School District No. 4 in Ponckhockie, for five years, and in later years, following consolidation, he served as a member of the Board of Education for 20 years, and also served as president of the education board for one year.

When the zoning board of appeals was created Mr. Gill served as chairman of the board from 1928 until 1936, when he resigned, owing to ill health.

One of Church Founders Judge Gill was a member and one of the founders of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church on Abruy street, serving on the board of trustees for many years. Until late years Judge Gill and his family resided on Abruy street.

Judge Gill was a charter member and past president of the Ulster County Bar Association, and a member of the Committee on Ethics of the Association of the Bar of the Third Judicial District.

Judge Gill in his younger days was also interested in boating and was one of the charter members of the Rondout Yacht Club. He was also interested in local mania matters and was a past president of Cordts Hose Company in Ponckhockie.

In the years before the first World War when the Rondout Club was an active social organization in the downtown section of the city Judge Gill for years was a member, and continued his membership until the club was disbanded. Included in the club membership were practically all of the prominent business and professional men of the downtown section of Kingston. The club for years had its rooms on East Strand.

Judge Gill was also a former member of the Kingston Club, a daughter of William Van Keuren and Jane Dempsey Van Keuren, who died in 1926. He is survived by three children: Walter H. Gill, H. L. Gill and Miss Llewellyn J. Gill, all of Kingston.

Was Active Republican An active Republican all his life, Judge Gill for more than half a century was active in the party councils, and also found the time to interest himself in civic affairs of the city. When a number of leading residents of the Ponckhockie section became interested in the question of organizing a church on Abruy street, Judge Gill was one of the most active of the group, and was a charter member of the new church.

He also interested himself in obtaining from the Newark Lime & Cement Co. title to the present church on Abruy street, which had been erected many years ago of cement and dedicated and used as a children's chapel.

Of genial disposition, Judge Gill during his long and successful career made a host of friends, not only in Kingston but throughout Ulster county. As surrogate of Ulster county he made a record as a just judge which has never been excelled.

In the death of Judge Gill the city has lost one of its outstanding citizens, and the Ulster county bar has suffered the loss of one of its most distinguished members.

The department at once sent two speedboats to the scene as well as the Central Hudson emergency truck. Officers Bowers and Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg also joined the party.

All members of the sailing party were able to swim and made their way to the boat after it had overturned. The three women clung to its sides, while Smith, who is recuperating from an operation recently, was helped onto the overturned hull.

The boat, which later was blown over to the east bank of the river was picked up by "Chick" Miller, who had gone to the rescue with his speed boat and Miller towed the craft to its mooring at Port Ewen.

The christening party was postponed.

Bar to 'Voluntary Quits' Strengthens Insurance Law

Albany, N. Y., May 26—No more can New York state workers who want a vacation, or are merely anxious to get away from it all, do so at the expense of the New York State Unemployment Insurance Fund. A bill signed recently by Governor Herbert H. Lehman provides for a six-week disqualification for all unemployment insurance benefit seekers who voluntarily quit their jobs "without good cause." Inasmuch as the usual three-week waiting period will not begin until the end of the disqualification period, it is expected that this amendment to the unemployment insurance law will effectively thwart the chiseling of many misguided benefit seekers.

A second portion of this amendment further provides that any employee who leaves his job of his own volition under circumstances which show either permanent or temporary withdrawal from the labor market shall be disqualified for unemployment insurance benefits until he can certify that he is again available for employment.

"Ever since benefit payments began back in 1938," according to Milton O. Loysen, executive director of the Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance, "the unemployment insurance law has been criticized because it allowed those who quit their jobs voluntarily, without good cause, to draw benefits. The administrators of the Unemployment Insurance Fund have found that many of these criticisms were well-founded. Workers, who had been granted vacation pay in advance, frequently resigned their positions and proceeded to collect benefits for 13 weeks, even though they had no intention of going back to work during that time. Young women about to be married, people in ill health, and scores of others took advantage of the 'availability for work' clause in the law by contending that they were available. This amendment is expected to serve as an additional bar to those who would like to collect benefits by contending that they are available after having quit voluntarily 'without good cause.'"

A claimant who leaves his employment for "good cause," Mr. Loysen said, "will be entitled to accumulate waiting period and benefit rights beginning with the date of his resignation at one of the local offices of the New York State Employment Service. In addition to other reasons which may constitute 'good cause,' the statute provides that it is 'good cause' if the following circumstances have developed: (a) the employment would either require the employee to join a company union or would interfere with his joining or retaining membership in any labor organization; or (b) there is a strike, lockout or other industrial controversy in the establishment; or (c) the employment is at an unreasonable distance from his residence, or travel to and from the place of employment involves expense substantially greater than that required in his former employment unless the expense is provided for; (d) the wages or compensation of hours or conditions offered are substantially less favorable to the employee than prevailing for similar work in the locality, or are such as tend to depress wages or working conditions.

"Effective administration of this new provision in the law," Mr. Loysen emphasized, "will depend to a large extent upon the prompt cooperation of employers in complying with regulations of the industrial commissioner for the reporting of circumstances surrounding an employee's separation from the payroll. If employers cooperate and return these reports promptly, the claimant will be immediately disqualified, if the verified information shows that he quit of his own volition 'without good cause.' Inasmuch as each local office will determine whether or not the claimant is or is not a 'voluntary quit,' it is of paramount importance that employers give wholehearted cooperation in this respect.

"If a local office determines that a claimant is a 'voluntary quit, without good cause,' he pointed out, 'the claimant cannot be reinstated until six weeks have expired. If a local office determines that a claimant has left his employment voluntarily 'with or without good cause' and has withdrawn from the labor market, no benefits will be paid him, nor will he be credited with serving any part of the normal three-week waiting period until he certifies in writing that he is again available for employment. If the 'voluntary quit' was without good cause, the six-week disqualification period must elapse before the date of such certification before the claimant returns to good standing." Mr. Loysen said that new regulations and rules to implement this addition to the law will be promulgated soon.

What It Means

Convoy Problems In This War

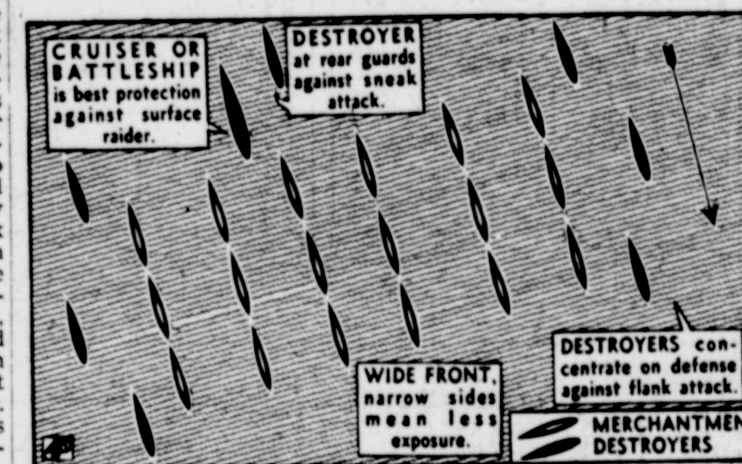

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Feature Service Writer

Washington—To convoy or not to convoy may be just another cracker barrel issue to John Q. Citizen, but to the hard-headed admirals it's a transportation problem, vastly complicated by the airplane and the radio.

Plane spotters and radio sound devices are the new pawns in the convoy game. By and large, the airplane is the better pawn. Because the Germans are based on Brest, France, in this war, they have an advantage they lacked in 1914-18. They're closer to the steamship lanes than are Britain's own air scouts. When they spot a convoy, they don't have to wait for a submarine to come along and hit the targets. They can let fly their own bombs. And it doesn't take much of a bomb to put a thin-skinned merchant vessel out of business.

Radio spotting devices are more sensitive in this war, but still they are not keen enough to warn convoys in time enough to scatter far.

The British convoy problem is more complicated in this war

This sketch is typical of convoy formations used during the World War. Current British technique is secret, but U. S. authorities say the old plan still is sound in principle. This formation was worked out for defense from submarines and does not take into consideration the present menace from the air.

because the British fleet does not have the help of the French, Italian, and Japanese fleets, nor the help of Uncle Sam's naval forces.

The British admiralty apparently has felt it could not spare large flotillas for convoy work, and so has had to shorten the periods of escort, both on outgoing and incoming voyages. That has made the pickings easier for the German.

How is a convoy escorted, and attacked? The usual convoy is a herd of merchant ships, escorted through dangerous water by destroyers, the arch foes of submarines.

Especially valuable shipments are sometimes guarded by a cruiser, or even a battleship. But big ships like that don't come a dime a dozen, and their use breaks up units of battle fleets.

That the British can't spare many big ships for convoy duty explains why the Germans have been using cruisers or battle cruisers against convoys. A destroyer doesn't have a chance against these big ships, for cruiser guns range far beyond those of a destroyer. They can pick off ships in the convoy line with ease.

British dearth of escorts also explains why the Royal Air Force went after the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau in their French berths day after day until these big battle cruisers were reported out of commission. While they were loose, the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst were death on convoys.

The British have established convoy meeting spots, where merchant ships wait for escort through waters close to the British Isles. There several destroyers usually meet each convoy. As the line gets under way, the destroyers set their speed to match the slowest ship in the line, which may be between six and eight knots.

If a submarine is sighted, the destroyers order the convoy to scatter, then start full speed for the sub. The sub skipper has quite a problem. Should he gamble on getting in position and firing his torpedoes, or should he dive? If he stays near the surface and shoots, the odds are better than three to one that he won't live to shoot again.

The destroyer is too fast for the sub, usually doing 20 to 30 knots. The sub can travel no more than 12 to 16 on the surface, and 6 to 10 submerged. The only escape is to go down more than 200 feet and wait.

But subs aren't always spotted. If the water is choppy, white caps hide periscopes. So the sub captain takes his time aiming his torpedo tubes, and fires in the course of the ships he has picked out. It's hard for the merchantman to escape, for he doesn't have much speed or maneuverability.

At night, subs are handicapped. The periscope is useless. If the sub comes to the surface, the escort can pick him out easily.

The subs have been successful in this war partly because they've been able to pick off merchant ships outside the convoy zones.

With the airplane, it's different. The Germans are based at Brest, again closer to British steamer lanes than is the Royal Air Force. That's why Britain has wanted Irish bases. Nazi planes can bomb merchantmen, radio position of convoys or single ships to subs or surface raiders.

Most American naval experts figure the best answer to the convoy problem, purely from a technical point of view, is the air scout attached in some way to convoy escorts. But they aren't talking about how these air scouts are operating, or can operate. It may be significant that the Germans are reported to be hitting fewer targets in the late spring than they were last March.

But we won't know the whole story until the war is over.

These Plants Must Have An Anti-Freeze Mixture

Right or wrong? There are three vegetables which can be left in the garden soil all winter and dug whenever a thaw comes in fine condition to eat.

How many gardeners would know that the answer to this quiz is "right"? The three vegetables which are not injured, but rather improved by freezing are: parsnips, salsify, and kale.

They must have an anti-freeze mixture in their veins; though on second thought they probably freeze, like other plants; but for some strange reason freezing does not injure them. Parsnips, indeed are definitely improved in flavor and tenderness by freezing.

All these are long season vegetables, taking four months to mature and should be sown in the spring, in well fed soil. At least four pounds of well balanced plant food should be used to each hundred square feet in which they grow, and they should be thinned out in the row, to six inches for parsnips, four for salsify, and about a foot for the kale.

Kale produces edible leaves, rather thick, with a distinctive flavor. Salsify is the vegetable oyster which gets its name because when cooked its flavor resembles that of the oyster.

The roots are long and slender and seldom more than an inch in thickness. They are at their best after having been frozen.

One of the reasons that has caused this vegetable to lack popularity is its unattractive and discolored appearance when cooked. This is due to the fact that it secretes a milky juice which turns black when exposed to the air. It should be cleaned and scraped in water which has been acidulated by the addition of vinegar. This will do away with the discolored appearance.

It is cooked by dipping it in batter and frying it in deep fat or by boiling and creaming it. In either style it is a very tasty vegetable.

Indianapolis—The household of Mrs. Andrew White knows now it is dangerous to leave a baseball bat laying around where just anyone can get hold of it.

Make Believe Raid

London, Ky.—State patrolmen, deputy sheriffs and a federal deputy captured a still in Levi Jackson Wilderness Road state park.

After the "capture" they learned the still was "a museum piece" being restored "in natural setting" to add to the park's display of "former mountain industries."

The Lost Is Found

Blair, Neb.—When Jennie Munk, 5, disappeared from home, her worried parents called for assistance.

At dusk Jennie wandered into the house. She'd crawled into her father's grain bin, pulled a funny sack over her head and fallen asleep.

THE SACRED DAGGER

By Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY: Anne Willard has been dropped into the middle of a Mongolian snowstorm by the plane which was carrying her to the camp of her parents, on the desert. Her two companions have been taken to the Emir, she is being smuggled to the Emir's palace, but under promise of protection by the potentate's head wife. Anne is disguised as an old crone.

Chapter Seven Discovered

NEXT morning Khalima rented a donkey from the inn keeper. Anne might ride but she herself insisted on walking. She had always walked this road. They would stay with the caravan as protection from possible highway-men.

Anne noticed that the little lama joined them as if he belonged to their party. They passed a caravan of corpses bound for Turkish holy ground and once they met a party bearing the empty coffin of an ancient Chinese—still alive but expecting to die on the way and be carried beyond the Great Wall for burial.

Shortly after they stopped at another caravanserai that night, four men and a pack camel came into the courtyard. When Anne looked up and saw them she felt her face suddenly grow warm enough for the black grease to melt and run. Sherwood, Mackey, the headman and his younger son.

With a happy heart Anne saw that the camel carried the luggage from the plane—including her own. Perhaps somehow she could gain possession of it. The white men were not shackled in any way though their keepers kept them pretty much under their eyes.

Anne and Khalima had chosen a little room off the main court next door to the common kitchen. Presently the lama came in and squatted down in a corner as if he meant to stay. Anne objected mildly. Khalima explained she had planned it. His relatives were present. They might suspect intrigue; they might suspect she was traveling with the woman supposed to have disappeared in the storm. But as it was, she accompanied a family she had met on the road. She was servant to the old mother of a holy man.

She looked up as Khalima stepped back from the doorway and permitted her relatives to enter. Motioning the white men to follow, they came in and squatted down and began smoking their pipes, taking it for granted they had a right in the room.

With trembling fingers Anne took the bowl of food Khalima handed to her. The native men stared sharply at the holy one in the corner. Khalima explained demurely that she was being paid to look after the old mother who sat looking helplessly at her bowl of food. Anne could not bring herself to eat with her dirty fingers as she was supposed to do.

Sensing her need without being told, the little lama handed her his chopsticks, but Anne felt as helpless as before. Sherwood who had been watching offered the servant woman a spoon from his pocket.

"Try feeding the old woman with this," he directed.

The native men picked up a conversation with the lama while Sherwood and Mackey began talking between themselves. Mackey refilled his pipe and Sherwood took a book and a candle from his pocket and settled down to read.

When Anne felt that the attention of the others had been sufficiently withdrawn from her she turned her back and began eating her evening meal. Then she crouched down in her corner hugging herself for warmth. The room was chill and becoming colder.

With a start she became aware that the white men were talking about her.

"You wouldn't think," said Sherwood, "that a person could get so grimy in one short lifetime?"

"Maybe it's not so short," remarked Mackey idly. "She looks to me as if she might be a hundred."

"These women are sometimes mother at twelve and toothless at twenty," Sherwood reminded him. "Did you notice if the old gal has any teeth?"

Mackey laughed. "With your scientific curiosity you will probably know before the night is over."

Sherwood spoke hastily. "Look at that nose of hers," he chuckled. "A Tibetan with a retousse nose!"

"And a bald head, I bet," offered Mackey, lying down flat on his back.

Sherwood Knows

ANNE felt an impulse to hide her face from all this fun at her expense, but she realized it might be a confession that she understood the talk.

"I wonder," mused Sherwood, "if we could persuade her to sing for us."

Suddenly the lama rose and the native men followed him out into the courtyard directing Khalima to guard their prisoners.

Mackey sat up when they left and looked about the room. "It is cold in here," he said, "and my confounded tooth is beginning to ache again."

Sherwood took a camelskin from the bed and hung it before the doorless entrance. Then he told Khalima to bring in a brazier of coals for warmth. He promised they would not stir from the room.

When she had left Mackey asked: "Do you suppose this old lady would scream an alarm if we bolted?"

"She might, and it would give us a chance to see if she has any teeth," he replied.

"Who cares if she has any teeth?" demanded Mackey in irritation.

"She looks angry enough to bite nails," said Sherwood and laughed. "Miss Willard, the getup is great."

Anne started. Mackey's eyes bulged.

"Set serpents," he muttered. "Is that Miss Willard?"

Anne saw that Mackey was innocent though Sherwood had been teasing her all along.

"How did you know?" she asked coolly.

"I made Khalima tell me when I left you the other night. I was worried about you. I couldn't let you disappear like that."

"You mean you wanted to keep track of the talisman I carry," she retorted sharply.

"I want you to be careful with that dagger," he confirmed. "And whatever you do, don't let any court officials know that you carry it. You see, the Emir has also heard of Shy-a Nago. It means treasure and loot to him."

A native came in, having been told there was a white man present. To the natives all white travelers are doctors. This man rubbed his stomach and made the appropriate gestures to explain his plight. Sherwood doled him and ordered him out.

Khalima returned with the fire cage and resumed her spinning. Mackey lay down with his face close to the coals in hope that the heat might relieve his pain.

"Would you like to try opium?" Sherwood asked.

Mackey shook his head. "I'm afraid of the stuff. It almost got me once."

Sherwood threw a sheepskin over him and then came and sat down beside Anne.

"Forgive my teasing," he said, "but I couldn't resist the opportunity. Somehow, just the sight of you suggests fun and happiness."

Anne felt depressed and cold and dirty. "I don't feel happy," she replied gloomily.

"Shy-a Nago is not something one finds alone," he hinted.

She misunderstood him. "I shan't be alone. My parents share it with me."

"You don't mention Oliver," he observed, keeping his eyes on the ground.

"And Philip Oliver," she added gravely.

In the silence that followed they heard the hum of native voices from the adjoining rooms. Complaining camels moaned and gurgled in the covered stalls in the courtyard. Somewhere close by, a misguided rooster crowed.

A man brought in a child with an infected foot. Sherwood cleaned and bandaged the wound and sent them away again. Then he returned to Anne.

"What is the book you were reading?" she asked.

"My desert island book," he smiled. "You know in foreign lands an archaeologist frequently gets cast away on desert islands. If you and Mackey weren't here tonight, this would be a desert island."

"I ought to have such a book," murmured Anne.

"Yes—especially now that you've really graduated into the tribe."

He put the book away. "Where do you carry the dagger?"

"It wouldn't do you any good to take it away from me."

"I might take you both," he threatened, a speculative look in his grey eyes.

The Dagger

ANNE drew back her native cloak and showed the leather case fastened to a belt about her waist.

"The priest said no one will harm me while I carry the dagger," she opened the case and drew out the knife.

Sherwood's eyes glistened. He spoke softly. "Besides your parents, you and I are the first modern white people ever to see that knife."

Anne turned the weapon over in her hand.

Sherwood caught her wrist. "Look," he cried, "the eye of Shy-a Nago!" He continued to gaze in awe at the figure carved on this side of the handle. "Among these native peoples of the present day a green eye in a man implies the incarnation of a spirit of supernatural origin—god or devil or both."

"When I first took the knife in my hands that pair of natives watched me to see what I would do," Anne told him. "The weapon felt alive and I guess I showed it. The man asked, 'Do you wish to kill yourself?' and he didn't seem to mind if I did."

"What else did they say?"

"After we got to their camp they warned me that any one touching the knife without the right of ownership would suffer misfortune and die."

"Do you believe that?" he queried, giving her a sidelong glance.

"I don't know. Do you?" With an impulsive gesture she held out the dagger to him.

He laughed and drew back hastily. Never before had she seen him so nearly disconcerted.

"Anne, you don't mean this?"

Mackey, who had roused and overheard the last of the conversation, reached out a hand. "Let me take it. Death couldn't be any worse than the way I feel right now."

Sherwood intervened sharply. "Don't touch the thing, Pete!"

Suggest Schools Aid in Shortage Of Farm Workers

Albany—Opening schools next fall a week or 10 days early to permit the release from classes during the harvest season of young people has been suggested to make up the serious shortage of farm workers, Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, Deputy Commissioner of Education, State Education Department, announced here today.

"The shortage of farm workers during the current productive season is becoming so acute," said Dr. Wilson, "that the State Education Department, in cooperation with farm organization leaders and government officials are fearful that dangerous reductions in greatly needed food products may occur unless positive steps are taken."

The Bureau of Agricultural Education of the State Education Department, of which Dr. Arthur K. Getman is chief, has been in close touch with farm organization leaders and officials of the State Department of Agriculture and the State College of Agriculture with reference to possible action which might be expected from young people in school as a means of forestalling the pending shortage.

"At present," explained Doctor Getman, "it appears that there are two specific types of service these young people could render: first, it is suggested that the boards of education and trustees acting within their legal authority consider the possibility of opening schools a week or ten days in advance of the regular opening date in September. This would permit the release from school of young people competent to engage in the harvest of important crops at home and elsewhere in the community later in the fall. In this way young people who are experienced in farm work would be able to make a valuable contribution at the critical harvest period."

"Governor Lehman has heartily approved the appointment by the State Conference Board of Farm Organizations of a statewide agricultural defense committee, which will make recommendations in each county. The Farm Bureau agent is secretary of this committee in each agricultural county. When in the opinion of the committee such a procedure as is here suggested would seem appropriate, a definite appeal should be made to the boards of education and trustees in whose districts a shortage of harvest workers is expected.

"Second, in many rural areas of the state there are young men more than 16 years of age who do not have definite employment commitments during the summer months. These young men should be encouraged to make their services available to local farmers in types of work suited to their experiences.

"Most young men are able to drive motor vehicles and would be able to undertake such work with tractors, trucks and cars in connection with farm work. Others could do work in which specialized skills are not required.

"The teachers of agriculture throughout the state could render valuable assistance in placement training and follow-up services for these young people. It is suggested that in each high school located in agricultural areas some person be designated as the coordinating agent between the boys and girls willing to do farm work at reasonable wage rates and the farmers who need help. Such persons should keep in close touch with the local Farm Bureau agent regarding placement requests. Teachers of agriculture will assist in follow-up and general supervision of the work of these young people if too great distances of travel are not involved.

"The American people are beginning to face the fact that we must prepare for many contingencies over a long period of time. It is certain that a crisis after another will occur before the world returns to any type of stable peace. In the World War the food situation presented a critical issue and in the last analysis proved to be a deciding factor. For the present the two-pronged attack, the building of aircraft and mechanized equipment and the training of defense workers are occupying major attention.

"But the food situation and the imperative demand for our aid is rapidly approaching critical proportions. It requires man power to keep production at new high levels. In the face of the current demand for farm workers, thousands of farm youth have been drawn away by the selective service draft, by industry and by the industrial defense training program. Estimates as of May 15 indicate a farm labor shortage throughout the season of approximately 21,000. During September and October this shortage will be of course be most acute."

Going to the Dogs.
Taos, N. M.—You've heard of a moth-eaten sweater—well, prairie dogs did the same to an airport. Expecting an air visitor, Custodian Ivan Kinsey went to inspect the field. The dogs had set up housekeeping in the runways. The plane bumped its way over the mounds to a safe landing, however.

Jane S. Holcomb Presents Musicale

Kingston's waning musical and social season was marked by a musicale Sunday afternoon in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Holcomb, when their daughter, Miss Jane S. Holcomb, presented a delightful piano recital before an audience of more than 60 friends and music lovers.

Miss Holcomb was not only happy in her choice of numbers for this program, but was singularly happy in her choice of assisting artists. Miss Jessie Kaprelian, soprano, and Miss Joan Craig, accompanist, added materially to the lovely program.

Two years ago Miss Holcomb presented a student recital in which she disclosed a real talent for the piano. Sunday afternoon she fulfilled, in large measure, the promise noted by a number of professional musicians who heard her initial program. Notable among this young musician's gifts are a secure memory, facile scale technique and a fine sense of musical proportion. Miss Holcomb was at her best in the Mozart Variations and in the Debussy "Clair de Lune." The latter number had to be repeated.

Miss Kaprelian sings with ease and understanding. Her voice is one of considerable beauty, especially her middle register, which is warm and velvety. Her best number was "I Love Thee," by the Norwegian composer, Edvard Grieg. Miss Joan Craig provided technically secure and emotionally sensitive accompaniments.

At the conclusion of the program an informal reception gave the guests an opportunity to congratulate Miss Holcomb, her teacher, Miss Lina M. Schmidt, and the assisting artists.

The program follows:

Good Taste Today

RESTAURANT HOSTESS, WHO WENT HUNGRY BECAUSE GUEST BROUGHT HER OWN POST, APPEALS TO EMILY

The situation described by an imposed-upon hostess in one of today's letters is obviously one that should never be encountered. And yet, I am choosing it to head today's column because my reader's predicament is by no means unheard of. The letter question asks: "What can I do when a friend, whom I invite to lunch with me in a restaurant, arrives with a friend of her own whom I didn't invite and whom I know very slightly? This happened to me lately and as I had not had time to go to the bank before meeting my guest at the restaurant, I had uncomfortably little in my purse to pay the check. In fact, to make sure I could pay the check, I just ordered a bowl of crackers and milk and explained that I was not feeling well. I was resentful and hungry!"

In answer to this, the only time one may take an uninvited friend of one's own (in addition to taking a dancing man to a dance given by a friend one knows well) is when one has been given the definite privilege of bringing anyone one chooses to a general party or possibly on a certain specified day of the week or the month when the host keeps "open house." But this, in the present day, is a very exceptional situation. That is quite different from having a provide for an unexpected guest in a restaurant.

Even if you had a charge account at the restaurant and had been in no embarrassment about paying the check and could have ordered what you preferred to eat, it would still have been "cheeky" behavior on the part of your guest to force her guest upon you. On the subject of paying the check: Should it ever happen to you again and you do not want to lunch on crackers and milk, I think it would be better to ask your friend—but in an aside—before you order, "Can you let me borrow (however much) from you?" If she alone hears you, you might add, I haven't enough for three." But of course you could not say this in the hearing of this third person. If she has no money with her, then crackers and milk or toast and tea would seem to be inevitable.

Dear Mrs. Post: When the knife has not been used during the meal, should it be picked up at the end of the meal course and laid with the fork across the plate so it will be taken out when the plate is removed?

Answer: It should be left where it is. In correct formal service the table is cleared of the salt cellars and peppercorns and unused silver, and crumbed before dessert by the person waiting on table. If there is no one waiting on table the unused silver would be left until the table is cleared after the meal.

Annual Service Held for Soldier And Sailor Dead

Two impressive Memorial Day services were held Sunday in Kingston, one that afternoon at Kingston Point and the other that night in the Municipal Auditorium.

At the services at Kingston Point members of the veterans and affiliated units in the city met for the annual ceremony of strewing flowers on the waters of the Hudson river in memory of those who had died at sea in the service of the nation.

The program was in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Tappan Camp, No. 1, Sons of Union Veterans, with Mrs. Eugene A. Flicker in charge. For the first time since the annual custom was inaugurated there was no veteran of the Civil War in attendance as all have died.

The Rev. H. Victor Kane of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church was the principal speaker of the afternoon and delivered a patriotic address. Mayor Heiselman also spoke while Frances Parsells sang a solo and the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Arthur S. Cole, retired pastor of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

Members of the Kingston Post of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars composed the firing squad under the command of Sergeant Abram Singer. The members of the squad were Martin O'Brien, Joseph Perry, George Planhaber and Alphonso Faloutico of the Veterans and Achilles Naccarato, Raymond Maginnis, Philip Hutton and William Jordan of the Legion. Taps were sounded by Bugler Francis Sass of the Sons of the Legion.

At the evening service in the auditorium the speakers were the Rev. Russell Damstra of the Reformed Church of the Comforter, the Rev. Stanislaus J. Malinowski of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom of Temple Emanuel.

Reads Address
The reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address was given by Paul Beshegetorian; Miss Catherine Nagy recited "In Flanders Field" and Leonard Rabin led the assemblage in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. All three are students in the Kingston High School.

A double quartette of high school students also sang during the course of the program. The members were Henry Hopper, Donald Everett, Jeanne Brigham, Elaine Rich, Norman Erne, Roberta Hotelling, Parnan Gane and Jack St. John.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Arthur S. Cole and the benediction by the Rev. Maurice W. Venno. Taps were sounded by Francis Sass and William J. Mellert, Jr., of the Sons of the Legion. Other members of that organization acted as ushers at the service.

Chichester Man Released on Bail In Assault Case

William O. Grant, 34, of Chichester, arrested Saturday night by Trooper Ray Dunn on a charge of assault, second degree, and who has been held at the county jail, furnished bail in the sum of $500 and was released this morning, pending a hearing Thursday night before Justice William C. Weyman.

Grant is charged with having assaulted a neighbor, Lester Craig, hitting him over the head with an iron pipe and inflicting several cuts, one of them five inches in length. Craig was treated by Dr. Charles Quinn of Phenicia and afterward a complaint was made to Trooper Dunn, who arrested Grant.

According to the story told to Trooper Dunn by Grant he had warned Craig to stay away from his home, but Saturday night when he arrived home and walked around the house he said that he saw Craig in the front room sitting on a couch. Grant said that he then came in the kitchen and on his way picked up the piece of pipe which is nearly two feet long. He met Craig in the dining room and the fight took place. Grant's wife is said to have taken the piece of pipe from her husband and thrown it out the window.

Gets Ten Days
Roy Forman of Los Angeles, Calif., arrested in the town of Ulster Sunday by Deputy Sheriff McCullough, was given ten days in the Ulster county jail when arraigned before Justice Percy Bush on a charge of vagrancy.

Several Slight Fires
The discovery of an outside door on fire at the former Herbert Brush Co. plant on Greenlark avenue caused an alarm to be turned in from Box 1131, Cedar Street, Sunday night. The fire was quickly extinguished by the fire department. Saturday the fire department was called to fight two brush fires on Chapel street, and another for a fire in the upholstery of an auto owned by Ben Furman, parked in a garage at 32 Meadow street.

Stocks Slightly Lower Last Week

Threat of Federal Control Checked Commodities

Stocks were slightly and irregularly lower last week. They drifted aimlessly the last two days of the week, Saturday being one of the duller sessions of the year, with transactions totaling but 160,260 shares. In the Dow-Jones averages changes were negligible, the industrials being off .08, the close the week at 64; rails off .01, to 27.64, and the utilities showing a gain of .09, closing at 16.99. A spurt last Tuesday sent the industrial average up a point and a half, but two-thirds of this was lost on Thursday and net gain for the week was reduced to .53 point. The rail and utility averages both had slight losses for the week as a whole.

The upward rush of commodities was checked to some extent last week as there were threats of government control and margin reduction for higher priced speculative activities. Saturday's trading, confined largely to profit-taking and week-end short covering in the futures market was indecisive and changes were narrow. The Dow-Jones futures index closed the week at 68.90, a slight net gain for the week. Cotton went to the 13½ cent level Saturday, new high for the season, but closed two points higher to two lower on profit-taking.

The battle for the control of Crete was an important factor in the part of investors, while at home impediments higher taxes, economic controls, such as price fixing, priorities in strategic materials for the armament program and the like and threats of labor disturbance, including a pending demand for higher pay, railroad men, all added to the uncertainty of the situation. Much of this undoubtedly has already been discounted by the market, leading some observers to believe that there is likely to be resistance at around the present levels although it is recognized that further bad news easily could send the average still lower.

Insurance Action Will Be Re-Tried

Long Hours Are Expected in Pre-Holiday Court

Long hours will be the order of the day in Supreme Court in Kingston for the first three days this week in order to insure completion of the pending case before the holidays.

This case is an action brought by Jacob Reiter against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and is brought to recover disability benefits under insurance policy and for declaratory judgment. Isadore Rothenberg appears for the plaintiff; Wiswall, Walton, Wood & McAffee are attorneys for the insurance company.

A jury was drawn and taking of testimony was started this morning. The last trial the case took up over four days, so that Judge Schirick this morning fixed the hours for the next three days as follows: 9 a. m. to 1: 2:30 p. m. to 6: 7:30 p. m. to 9 o'clock.

Stannard Plans Hotel Management

Stuyvesant Will Be Under Los Angeles Man

Management of the Stuyvesant Hotel of this city will be taken over June 1 by Elbert T. Stannard of Los Angeles, Cal., where for some time past he has been operating successfully two hotels, the Lee and the Admiral Hotels. Announcement of the change in management was made last night and a five-year lease, with option of renewal was signed today at the office of Attorney George Kaufman, who represents the new management.

Hamilton Laurie, who has managed the Stuyvesant since July 1, 1936, and who is president of the Ulster County Hotel Co., owner of the property, will devote his time to the conduct of the Hotel Capitol at Albany, which he has operated for the past 15 years.

Mr. Stannard will have the expert assistance of Mrs. Stannard and of his sister, Mrs. Priscilla Phelps of Hamden, Conn., in conducting the Stuyvesant. Mrs. Stannard is a business executive and has been active in the management of the hotel in Los Angeles, while Mrs. Phelps, who is an experienced dietitian and hostess, will have complete charge of the dining room.

The new manager of the Stuyvesant, who is a native of New Haven, Conn., has had long experience in the hotel and restaurant business. His connections include the Alexander and Bradley hotels in Chicago and the Horn and Hardart automats in that city; the Waldorf Hotel of Dallas, Texas; the Adlon Hotel in San Francisco and the two hotels in Los Angeles, the lease of which he terminated on April 1, last. He also was for a time engaged as a department store executive in Portland, Ore. He is a member of the Lodge of Elks, the American Hotel Association as well as several other hotel organizations.

Mr. Stannard plans on making the city his permanent home. He has in view the instituting of innovations in hotel service, and in the dining room and grill, which have proved popular and successful in the Los Angeles hotels.

Since Mr. Laurie came to Kingston in 1936 and became president of the Ulster County Hotel Co., and assumed management of the Stuyvesant, along with his Albany hotel, he has made extensive changes in the hotel. Part of the plan carried out of modernizing the property and its equipment was the construction of a dozen kitchenette apartments, which have been in great demand. The grill was rebuilt, the kitchen re-equipped and recently the dining room, now known as "the County Room," was completely changed and modernized.

Mr. Laurie originated the "West Shore Association," designed to promote business on the west side of the Hudson and the organization meeting, with representatives from seven counties, was held at the Stuyvesant.

Mr. Laurie continues as president of the Ulster County Hotel Co., with William H. Van Etten as vice-president and David Schoenag as secretary.

Smoke but No Fire

Observer Edison of the Gallie Hill fire tower said this morning that he had been besieged by calls yesterday by people who wanted to know "where the fire was." Cause of the inquiries was the heavy smoke which flew in from the northwest between 11 and 12 o'clock Sunday morning. The smell of smoke was plain and visibility was reduced to about two miles. Mr. Edison said that there was a similar occurrence Friday but that there have been no recent fires in this area. He thought the smoke might have been blown this way from fires in Canada or perhaps from a large fire reported in Pennsylvania.

Crespi of Cards Injures Finger; Recs Beat Copake Falls, 5-2

Redbirds Sweep Twin-Bill From Pittsburgh Club

Lefty Grove Wins 296th Game by Beating Yanks, 10-3; Feller Takes Ninth Win, 6-0

(By The Associated Press)

The St. Louis Cardinals, setting a breathless pace in the National League, open a new series against the Chicago Cubs today with a patched-up infield, the result of an injury to their sensational rookie second baseman, Frank Crespi.

Crespi suffered a fractured finger yesterday as the flying leaders were sweeping a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates by scores of 6 to 4 and 4 to 3, and probably will be out for a fortnight.

This will supply the test of whether the Cards are sufficiently strong in replacements to shake off an occasional casualty and go right on by downing the opposition. If Crespi's absence fails to slow Billy Southworth's boys, then Brooklyn might as well begin pointing for '42.

The injury forces Southworth to shift Jimmy Brown from third to second, a position at which he does not excel, and to install Steve Mesner at third. In his first time at bat yesterday Mesner smote a double with the bases loaded to win the opening game, but he failed to hit in four attempts in the nightcap and committed an error. However, with Enos Slaughter and Johnny Mize rattling the fences day after day, Mesner's batting will not be of supreme importance.

Feller Wins Ninth
The Cleveland Indians, threatening to make a runaway of the American League race, went bowling merrily along to their fifth straight victory as 20,000 Sunday fans watched Bob Feller shut out the St. Louis Browns 6 to 0 and rack up his ninth victory of the year. The demon young fireballer fanned 13 and didn't allow a hit until the fifth.

Jeff Heath, the Indians' barrel-legged outfielder, became the first batter ever to smash a ball into the upper deck of Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. He also hit a triple and a single.

Old Lefty Grove inched nearer his lifetime goal of 300 victories as he notched No. 296 at the expense of the New York Yankees, 10 to 3. The great southpaw gave up only seven hits and would have scored a shut-out if Jimmy Foss had not dropped Charlie Keller's pop foul for the third out in the fourth inning. Keller, given a life, then hit a home run with two on.

The Chicago White Sox, after having gone scoreless for 26 straight innings, burst loose with a seven-run rally in the seventh frame at Detroit to knock Hal Newhouse from the hill and win 7 to 3. Thornton Lee went the route for the Sox.

The Athletics swept their three-game series with Washington by jumping on the eminent knuckleballer, Dutch Leonard, for five runs in the eighth. The score was 7 to 3.

Reiser Hits Grand Slam
With Joe Medwick dropped down to seventh place in the batting order, the Brooklyn made the most of five hits to beat the Phillies, 8 to 4. Young Pete Reiser's sixth-inning homerun with the bases filled was the blow that ruined Ike Pearson. Whit Wyatt again failed to last for the Dodgers, and Bill Swift got credit for the win.

Charley Root bested Paul Deringer in a tense duel as the Chicago Cubs nosed out Cincinnati, 3 to 2, in the ninth. Billy Nicholson's double, followed by a sacrifice and Charley George's single, broke it up. Ernie Lombardi's homerun provided both Cincinnati runs.

The Boston Braves trotted out 22 players, but still lost to the Giants, 6 to 2.

"I know when I should make a kick and when I should keep my mouth shut. That is why I have been chased from the field only twice during my major league career."

Hostak Set for Zale

Chicago, May 26 (AP)—It has taken Al Hostak 16 months to work up a good "mad" against Tony Zale, the man who knocked him off the middleweight title throne.

But Hostak's managers say that now the Seattle jolter is ready to give Zale the whipping of his life when they meet for the third time in a 15-round title test at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

Win of Season in a Free Lance Game; Albright Wins

Coach Cliff Miller's Kingston High School baseball squad finally hit the column of base hits in large proportions Saturday afternoon in Tannersville by defeating the mountaineers 10 to 8 in a ragged game.

The victory, helped considerably by Tannersville's seven miscues, was Kingston's fourth of the season against two setbacks. Lou Albright and Bill Windburn hurled for Kingston, the former getting credit for the victory.

Billy Conn Ready To Turn Slugger In Fight Tonight

Pittsburgher Must Win Decisively or Give Up Heavyweight Title Hopes

Pittsburgh, May 26 (AP)—Threatened with the "sudden death" of his heavyweight title dreams unless he wins decisively, Billy Conn may turn slugger tonight as he seeks to smash down Buddy Knox, unsung Dayton, O., boxer, in a final 15-round pre-Louis "test" before a hometown crowd.

This strange transition from master boxer into fistie dynamiter became vitally necessary for Conn through an ultimatum by Mike Jacobs which virtually ordered Billy to win by a knockout or sacrifice his rights to a title crack at Champion Joe Louis next month in New York.

Jacobs, promoter of the Conn-Louis fight scheduled for June 18, issued his ultimatum in the midst of the noisy aftermath which followed Louis' controversial victory over Buddy Baer at Washington Friday.

Baer's surprising showing touched off loud demands to replace Conn with Baer in the June shot at Louis. Jacobs indicated he would give serious consideration to this clamoring if Billy the Kid fails to commit mayhem on Knox, who originally was scheduled as sort of a dress rehearsal stogie.

Boiceville Defeats Roxbury by 5 to 4

Jack Strubel Pitches in 10-Inning Victory

The Boiceville club under the management of Walt Rittie defeated the Roxbury Wildcats 5 to 4 in 10 innings Sunday. Jack Strubel hurled six-hit ball to win.

Strubel, member of the Kingston High School pitching staff of recent years, was called upon to pitch winning ball and he managed to hurl his way to victory in the extra-inning affair.

Ausanio was the battery mate for Strubel while Merwin and Griffin worked all the way for Roxbury.

Teams looking for games are requested to contact Walt Rittie, 95 Gage street.

During Charley Gehring's long career as the Detroit second baseman, he has worked alongside of twenty-two or more shortstops. The record books show twenty-two but possibly there may have been a few others who did not play more than a game or so. But here is the twenty-two list: Topper Rigney, Jack Tavenner, Frank O'Rourke, Marty McManus, Benie De Vireos, Chuck Gallows, Wuestling, Akers, Heine Schuble, Nolen Richardson, Mark Koenig, Billy Rogell, Marvin Owen, Ray Brower, Flea Clifton, Parker, Charley Gelbert, Mark Christman, Benny Mc Coy, Red Kress, Dick Bartell and Frank Croucher.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 26—Feed-box special: Market wise is all geared up to give Whirlaway a real test in the Belmont Stakes. Don Meade will be aboard. This gent isn't on our preferred list, but he doesn't fool around with cows, you know.

The reds were so glad to get out of Chicago last night they wouldn't wait for a regular train, but hired a special.

They're leveling off at Bob Zuppke out in Illinois and we wonder if Bob wishes he hadn't turned down that five-year offer to coach the Detroit Lions at $10,000 per year. Yea, verily, brethren, that's cabbage, not hay—and no alumni to boot.

Nobody in his right mind believes Joe Louis has to cart his own referee around. Just the same, nobody's feelings (except his own) would be hurt if Arthur Donovan is given a long vacation from future Louis bouts.

Justice Dept.
Let's hoist a stein to Buddy Baer! Boy, did he slip one over! And he should be right, back in there.

Instead of Conn or Nover? For all agree Joe Barely missed a place on Buddy's knockout list.

The Sports Parade
Record gate receipts for a National Open (452,000 at Interlachen, St. Paul, in 1930) more than likely will be surpassed next month at Fort Worth, (Texas has gone plumb wild over the thing).

Carl Hubbell, the old maestro, who never asked for quarter when he was in his prime, would like to see the lively ball toned down to give the young pitchers a break.

The coolness between Mike Jacobs and Billy Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, is no act. Secretly, Mike would like to see Conn turn in an indifferent performance to-night against Buddy Knox so Buddy Baer can be substituted June 18 for Billy against Louis.

Benny McCoy, who was to have reported tomorrow to Uncle Sam, appealed his draft board's ruling and is good for a couple more months with the A's.

Ben Jones, trainer of Whirlaway, is the New York World-Telegram's "Star-of-the-Week."

Point-With-Fridge Dept.
On May 14 this corner tipped: "If Buddy Baer feels like it, he can give Joe Louis the toughest time the champ has had since the 'Bum-of-the-Month' club was organized."

A Rose for Mose
Grove stood the Yank club on its head. To prove that Ole Man Mose ain't dead.

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, is the last American League player of the season of 1918 to retire from the active playing ranks. His only contemporaries who still are in baseball are: Eddie Collins, vice-president of the Boston Red Sox, Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Cleveland Indians, Coaches Milan, O'Neill and Shellenbach, Umpire Pinelli, Minor league managers Vitt, Leibold, Schang, Hannah and Mostil and Broadcasters Heilmann and Graney.

Sid Hudson, Washington hurler, ran into a long losing streak at the start of the 1940 campaign and then began to win nearly every game he pitched. His experience this year has been along the same line. He lost his first three games and then proceeded to win the next three.

Bob Bush Hurls First Victory of Season on Sunday

Locals Rally With Five Runs in Third; Celuch and Francello Lead the Batters

The Kingston Recreations came up with victory No. 1 Sunday afternoon by defeating Copake Falls 5 to 2 for their initial triumph of the 1941 campaign. Bob bush, rotund righthander, took the mound for the locals and pitched himself a neat ball game.

A couple of new faces made debuts in the lineup for the Recs yesterday. Kowalczyk, former Atlanta Cracker catcher, started behind the bat and caught all the way. Bing Van Etten, Abe Masei and Charlie Francello were the newcomers in the infield. Jimmy Ashdown and Charley Lay saw service in the outer gardens.

Playing their first actual competition of the season the Recs committed five errors but on the whole, played good baseball during the contest. Charlie Francello and Andy Celuch, at short and third, came up with a number of spectacular plays.

Schools Batted Out
Kingston went to town in one inning and that proved to be enough to win the game. Bill Schools, young southpaw, started for Copake Falls but was forced to give way to Head in the fourth. The Recs blasted Schools for five big markers in the third frame, their only scoring session.

In that fateful frame Bush started the rally with a double and advanced to third on Abe Masei's singleton. Jimmy Ashdown then beat down a scratch single which filled the sacks. Three runs scampered in as Celuch clouted a double. Singles by Francello and Tiano, along with an error by Schools, pushed in two more runs before the fire was put out.

Blass, the Fallsman's center fielder, was the main run-maker. He singled in Crawford in the fifth and then sent Van Alstyne in in the ninth.

Andy Celuch and Charlie Francello were the big guns for the Recreations. Both punched out two hits. Blass picked up three singles for the losers.
